EDITOR'S LETTER

As you all know, the 11th of June we held the first genealogical conference of the society in Miami, Florida and we are excited to let you know that it was a huge success.

We had over one hundred people attending, and many joined the society as new members.

In addition to the speakers announced, we had the honor of having Mrs. Esther Soaje Pinto present, an experienced historical researcher that had an extensive collection of Coats of Arms hand painted by her, of the Spanish surnames in the Americas. She brought some one hundred paintings and displayed them on the wall of the Koubec Center's auditorium.

All those in attendance were pleased to be able to see such a wonderful display of the coats of arms of many families well known in the history of Cuba. Many attending were descendants of these families and were doubly pleased to see them. Many also took the advantage of purchasing from Mrs. Soaje a painting of the coat of arms that belongs to their family name. Write to us if you are interested in a drawing of the coat of arms of your family name and we'll put you in touch with Mrs. Soaje.

Mrs. Esperanza de Varona's talk gave a lot of information about the library at the University of Miami and the books that hold Cuban genealogical information useful to us.

Dr. Enrique Hurtado de Mendoza's talk was very informative about the founding families of the first villas established in Cuba. He also had many anecdotes that gave life to these families.

Mrs. Mayra F. Sánchez-Johnson's talk gave us information about how to use the wealth of information held in the Archives of Spain about the proofs of Hidalguía of Spaniards and Cubans.

The entire conference was taped (audio cassettes) and is available for sale at $15.00 per set. We must mention that the conference was held in Spanish, because the audience was all Spanish speaking and the terminology would have lost a lot of meaning if it had been translated. An order form is included in this copy of the REVISTA.

SPANISH NAMES AND SURNAMES

Mayra F. Sánchez-Johnson
Accredited Genealogist

In the Spanish culture the name of a person identifies him or her as a unique individual, giving a mini family tree instantaneously. The name of an individual is composed of his given name, his father's surname and his mother's surname. We will discuss each one of them individually.

Given Name:

The first name of the person is referred to as the nombre de pila or nombre propio.

Nombre de pila means the name given at the baptismal font. The nombre propio means a name of our own (propio). It identifies the name as the one given to the individual for himself, or to identify him from others in the family.

The tradition of honoring a relative, mostly the godfather or godmother or one of the grandparents influenced the choice of name given to the child. This practice is not so popular nowadays, but it was very much so up until the middle of the early 1900s.

Another influence was a rule of the Catholic church that prohibited giving a child a name that was not represented by a Saint, since it was considered a non-Christian name. When a child was born on or around a saint's day, he or she was given that saint's name.

It was very common in the late 19th century to give a child more than one name. For instance: José Antonio Manuel; therefore honoring a few elders at the same time, or hiding a not very well liked name among others better liked. There are instances where the child is given as many as eight names, but he would only use one in his informal life and even in formal events.

Another custom that was very common was giving the same name to more than one child, if the first child with the name had died. For instance a couple had a boy they named Pedro. Pedro dies at the age of 2. Some years later the couple has another boy and they name him Pedro also.

Surnames:

The surnames in the Spanish culture are what identify the person as being the offspring of two individuals, and the combination of both names makes the person more unique than if only one surname was used. The two surnames are separated by a "y" which means "and". Many times the "y" is not written which may complicate the understanding of the names, but for the most part the "y" is always written.

In order to understand the reason why there are two surnames to begin with, we need to explain that in the Spanish culture when a woman marries she does not have to take the name of the husband. She keeps her surname and adds her husband's surname. Example: María Elena Sánchez y García marries Francisco Herrera y González. She can now be called María Elena Sánchez de Herrera. The word "de" means "of" and her name tells that she is María Elena Sánchez married to Herrera. When she becomes a widow, she may be referred to as María Elena Sánchez, viuda de Herrera (widow of Herrera), but only in legal matters. Throughout her life, and even at the time of her death, she is always known by her name given at birth: María Elena Sánchez y García or her married name: María Elena Sánchez de Herrera.

The surnames are referred to as apellidos. In the Spanish culture the apellido of the father and the apellido of the mother are given to the child to form his legal name. For instance: José Antonio Rodríguez y

López, married to María Luisa Jimenez y Alonso have a child and they give him the nombre propio of Carlos Ramón. The child's apellidos, even though they are not specified in the baptism entry, are Rodríguez y Jimenez: the first apellido paterno (surname of the father) and the first apellido materno (surname of the mother). Therefore the child's full name is Carlos Ramón Rodríguez y Jimenez.

The custom of giving the two surnames to the child has always been so in the Spanish culture, since the Middle Ages. It is a natural product of the respect the culture has for the women and the fact that they consider the woman's name as part of the child's heritage.

Kinds of Surnames:

There are three different kinds of surnames, according to their origins. They are all called apellidos at this time, but from the source of origin they can be classified as follows:

Patronimico: coming from the given name of the father or patriarch. Examples: Ruiz, son of Rui; Sánchez, son of Sancho; Fernández, son of Fenando.

Apellidos: coming from the place where the family lived, and most of the time preceded by the prefix de or del. Example: del Alamo; de la Peña; de Urrutia; Toledo; Laras.

Alcaña: A surname taken by a person or given to him because of a happening in which he was involved. For example: two brothers from Galicia fought with the Moors to free one hundred maidens that the Moors had taken hostage and were transporting to the south of Spain. The brothers won the fight and the King of Spain gave them the surname of Figueroa, because the fight took place in a place that was surrounded by fig trees. Other surnames like this are: Girón, Leal, Armas.

Variations through time:

In the 16th and 17th centuries there were parts of Spain where the custom of reversing the order of the apellidos was in use. For instance Carlos Ramón Rodríguez y Jimenez would have been Carlos Ramón Jimenez y Rodríguez. This was done in order to preserve the name of the mother, which would otherwise be lost in one generation. However, this made it difficult for the meticulous Spanish record keepers, and the custom was standardized by the end of the 17th century to have the father's surname first.

There were also the cases where persons, after becoming an adult, willfully changed his surname in order to have a less common one. That was accomplished many times by taking the surname of the mother instead of the father's. Other times the name of one of the grandfathers was chosen, if the name was uncommon.

Another common practice was to combine two apellidos and make one less common and more distinct. For instance Antonio Fernández y Vallejo, after making a small fortune, wants to start a new lineage to distinguish his offspring from the rest of the family and gives to his children the apellido Fernández Vallejo. Their mother gives them the apellido Alvarez and the children now have the apellidos Fernández Vallejo y Alvarez.

In the Middle Ages in the Canary Islands we see the custom of giving the first child the surname of the father and the second child the surname of the mother. This "taking turns" continues with the other children. The reason was, again, to preserve the name of the mother which would have been lost. Since at the time the Spaniards were populating the island, they wanted to leave the name of the mother represented in future generations. To accomplish this, half the children were given the mother's apellido.

In many cases where the apellido was a composite of two words, (González Bustamante) the first word is used by itself by the priests in writing the baptism entry, but the family would emphatically try to keep both words, or even drop the most common name, in this case

González, and keep Bustamante. We can see which name exactly the individual wanted to keep when we read the marriage entry, where he or she gave her full name and the priest complied by writing it in full.

When dealing with a compounded apellido, we need to keep in mind that the priests wrote the entry of the ordinance some time after, not often close enough to the ordinance for him to remember exactly what name the persons wanted used. The priest most likely knew the people involved very informally, and he considered the use of both words in the apellido not to be necessary. Because of this, many times we find a family with a compounded surname referred to by only the first half of the surname.

The origin of a compounded surname could be by joining the father's and the mother's surnames, as explained before, or from the custom of adding the place of origin to the surname. Example: Francisco González, who was born in Riaño, would be called Francisco González de Riaño, and soon the family became a new lineage: González de Riaño.

Regional Differences:

Spain is made up of many regions that are in and of themselves different cultures. The region of Galicia, the region of Navarra, the region of the Basque, and the region of Catalonia are all very different cultures from the region of Castille, which is, geographically, in the middle of all the others, and which dominates the nation.

The custom of surname usage in Galicia was of giving the apellido of the mother to the girls and the apellido of the father to the boys. Up until the middle of the 16th century in Galicia, this was the case. A similar custom can be found in the province of Extremadura, south of Galicia.

In the region of Catalonia, the custom of the women taking the surname of the husbands was used until the Castille culture was imposed upon them. In the documents, we can find a time when the woman will use both her surname and that of her husband to make the transition of personality, but in time the woman would use only the husband's surname. She is known from then on by her husband's surname until her death.

Apodos:

Many times we will find that there are more than one person in the town with the same name. They could be related or not, but it is obvious that the confusion is not ours only because the people of the town would give these individuals what the Spanish call an apodo (nickname) to differentiate them from each other.

This apodo would not replace the name of the person, but rather it would be added on, as a description of the person to distinguish it from the other. Example: One Antonio Moreno is 20 years old. His father's name is Antonio Moreno also. When referring to Antonio the 20 year old, he would be referred to as Antonio el hijo (Antonio García the son), or Antonio García menor (Antonio García minor), or Antonio García el mozo (Antonio García the young). The father would most likely be referred to as Antonio García el viejo (Antonio García the old), or Antonio García el mayor (Antonio García the elder).

When the two persons with the same name were of the same age or not related, the apodo would refer to another distinct difference between the persons. For instance, one could be called Antonio García el verde (Antonio García the green one), or Antonio García el alto (Antonio García the tall one).

This custom was an informal one but the priests would write this apodo in the entry of an ordinance in order to distinguish the two Antonios, instead of trying to remember or find out the second apellido, which would have identified each of the Antonios more fully.

Titles:

A unique Spanish title that is used only by the untitled nobility was that of Don and Dofia. In Spain, in order to recruit men to fight the Moors's conquest the King offered to the people special privileges for those who joined the army. These privileges were the right to own land, the right to pay no taxes, the right to be a local government leader, and the right to be called Don, and his wife to be called Dofia. This class latter was called the hijos de algo or hidalgos, (sons of someone) which is the name by which the untitled nobility is known in Spain to this day.

This title can give us the hint that there can be a wealth of genealogical information about this family in the Archives of Valladolid, Granada or Navarra. When a Don decided to move to another town and acquire land and exercise his rights, but he was not known by anyone in that new town, he needed to prove legally to the town's government that he was entitled to those rights. This was accomplished by presenting to the town government and the province government the birth and marriage certificates of 3 to 5 generations to prove the descendance of the person. In addition the padrones (census) of the hidalgo class were presented to prove that the ancestors were considered hidalgos in other towns. Sometimes these census go back for 5 generations.

As it can be seen these pruebas de hidalguia (proofs of hidalguia) are of tremendous genealogical importance and value.

The proofs of hidalguia for most of Spain are kept in the Royal Archives of Valladolid. The Archives of Granada keep the proofs from the region on the south of Spain. The Archives of Navarra keep the proofs from the Northeast corner of Spain for the Basque people; also the Archives of Bilbao and Guernica keep the proofs from the Basque country.

In addition, the untitled nobility were able to join the military and civil orders, which in themselves can be very valuable in terms of genealogical information.

SANTIAGO DE CUBA

by José Santa Cruz Pacheco y Rivero

first published in Hidalguía

As well explained by Don Luis Lira Montt in his work "La prueba de la hidalguía en el Derecho Indiano", published in HIDALGUÍA, no. 140, Jan-Feb 1977, among the positive acts of hidalguía in the Indies were: "The posts of Alcalde (mayor), Alcalde ordinario (ordinary mayor), Alcalde de primero y segundo voto (mayor of first or second vote), Regidor (alderman), Regidor perpetuo (perpetual governor), Regidor decano (senior governor), Alférez real (royal ensign), Alguacil mayor (principal constable), Procurador general (general attorney), Alcalde mayor provincial (provincial principal mayor), Alcalde de la Santa Hermandad (mayor of the sacred brotherhood), Fiel ejecutor (executive), Depositario general (general treasurer) and other post of the counsel."

The city of Santiago de Cuba was founded in the year 1514 by don Diego de Velázquez y Cuellar, conquistador and adelantado of the island of Cuba, where two years later he established residency, and in order to become independent from the Governor of Santo Domingo (Diego de Colón, son of the discoverer) he established in this city a municipal government "like those of Castille"; this permitted him to govern autonomously, since the members of the municipal government could exercise the principal posts of the island in addition to their municipal duties.

The first Alcalde of the city was don Hernán Cortés, who later became the conquistador of Mexico; in this manner the municipal government of Santiago de Cuba is the first of America.

After the death of Don Diego Velázquez (1524), instructions were received ordering the city of Santiago de Cuba to have two Alcaldes ordinarios, and in the other towns and villages of the island to have only one, because of their small size. It was also ordered to name the alcaldes on the first day of the year by vote of the neighbors and not by the vote of the regidores."

According to the thesis presented by D. Luis Lira Montt, we can deduce that from the first moment the alcaldes were chosen from among the most notorious hidalgos and important and respectable persons of the city, a tradition that is maintained until the beginning of the Ten Year War (1868). From that moment on the Alcaldes were from among those loyal to the crown, taking in consideration the respectability, and accomplishments of the person.

Following is a list based on the book Cronicas de Santiago de Cuba, by don Emilio Bacardí Moreau, a fervent patriot and santiaguero, who was the first Alcalde during the republic.

The list contains the name, year by year, with the exception of some gaps that would have to be filled when the information becomes available.

Notes:

1. Married to Magdalena Velásquez, niece of Diego Velásquez y Cuellar.
2. This year the elected Alcalde was Don Gonzalo Decobar o de Escobar, but the Governor (Don Gonzalo Nuñez de Guzmán) did not let him take possession of the post when he "takes away the staff and hits him over the head and pushes him out of the Cabildo."
3. During this period (1532-1539), the city was really a village, since the majority of the people had gone to the conquest of Mexico; there were only 20 inhabitants, as follows: "12 merchants, 4 officers and 4 others as Alcaldes."
4. The lawyer D. Bartolomé Ortiz had come with D. Hernando de Soto and besides being Alcalde, he was provisional governor with Isabel de Bobadilla, wife or widow of Don Hernando, who had died in the failed conquest of Florida.
5. From this point on the decadence of Santiago was noticeable, given the misgoverning of D. Juan de Avila and Don Antonio Chávez, who were sent back to Spain as prisoners. The government of Dr. Gonzalo Pérez de Angulo was disgraced as the previous ones; at this time La Habana became the capital of the island.
6. Even though we do not know the name of the Alcalde, we do know that this year the city of Santiago was given the "coat of arms of Castilla and León."

7. From this year on the city starts to be repopulated. The island is divided into two jurisdictions; in the western part, Cpt. D. Juan de Villaverde y Ureta, former Governor of Santiago de Cuba, is named castellan of the Morro of La Habana, in 1608. At this time many families came to establish manors; they established themselves in the city and their surnames last to this day as the base of the society in Santiago de Cuba.

8. Captain D. Andrés Duque de Estrada, (El Viejo), was originally from Salamanca; he arrived to the island of Cuba as Ensign to the Captain General and Governor of the island. Later he was named Lieutenant Governor of Santiago de Cuba, where he had proved his nobility in 1568; When he was elected Alcalde he was more that 80 years old, where his nickname "el Viejo" came from. He married Da. Leonor Tovar y Pacheco, and was the father of Andrés Duque de Estrada y Tovar, Alcalde Ordinario in 1620. This family went to Bayamo. Tomás Estrada Palma, first President of the Republic of Cuba in 1902, was their descendant.

9. El Alférez D. Blas de Tamayo has to be the same D. Blas Tamayo y Mejía elected Alcalde in 1674, since the Captain D. Rodrigo Tamayo y Ferral married in the parish of the village of Bayamo with María Ana Mexías de Paz, daughter of the Captain D. Blas Rodríguez de Paz y Da. Isabel de la Cruz Mexías.

10. The family Peñalver went to La Habana, where they founded the manor house, and received many titles from the crown of Castille.

11. We must indicate that we repeat the names only when they are Alcalde primero. In this case D. Antonio Castellanos was Alcalde primero in 1671, and Alcalde segundo in 1672; this is why it is not indicated as 2nd time. Equally the first name listed is that of the Alcalde primero and the second name that of the Alcalde segundo, when both are identified.

12. The Alférez D. José Palacios-Saldurtúm could have been Ramos or Mustelier; we were not able to identify him exactly.

13. See note 11.

14. The second surname of D. Francisco Xavier Cisneros could have been Regueyferos, Herrera-Moya or Fuentes.

15. That year the post had been held by Alférez D. Tomás Serrano and D. José López del Castillo; but because of the refutation on the votes from each of them, the Governor, Brigadier D. Juan Antonio Ayanz de Ureta, intervened and fined the majority of the Regidores. Finally the Cabildo determined that the Alcaldes Ordinarios should be the above mentioned.

16. This year the Governor, who was still Brigadier D. Juan Antonio Ayanz de Ureta, expresses doubt about the city having the title of "Muy Noble y Muy Leal", and the consistory sends a duplicate of the original document to prove it. This title was given to Santiago de Cuba by the King Felipe IV, when in the year 1699, an expedition composed of 150 Spanish, French and Cuban soldiers left from Santiago and went to Providencia and came back to Santiago de Cuba with a loot of 100 prisoners, 22 cannons and 13 ships.

17. Even though in some documents the name of Felipe appears, I believe that it was Felix Ferrer y Hechavarría.

18. Even though in this year the name appears as Félix, I believe it was Felipe Ferrer y Castro.

19. The Cnel. D. Antonio Vaillant y Berthier was the brother of Brigadier D. Juan Bautista Vaillant y Berthier, Governor of the Plaza of Santiago de Cuba in 1788. Antonio married Da. Juana María de las Cuevas y Duany, and in 1821 he was given the title of Marqués de la Candelaria del Yarayabo.

20. Because of the questions of the Jura and then the abolition of the Constitution that year, there were three Alcaldes primeros elected, as can be seen.

21. D. José Joaquín Portuondo y Rizo was given the title of Conde de Santa Inés in December of 1819.

22. He was the Marqués de la Candelaria de Yarayabo.

23. This year the elected Alcalde Primero was D. José J. Portuondo y Rizo, but the Governor, for reserved reasons, named D. Juan Bautista Cisneros y Estrada, Alcalde primero, giving the Conde de Santa Inés the post of Alcalde segundo.

24. The second surname of Lcdo. D. Manuel Hechavarría could have been Amabile or Mancebo, but it has not been determined yet.

25. D. Manuel de Cira Caona y Palafox was Marqués de Villaytre, by donation from his brother.

26. D. Antonio Vinent y Gola was Marqués de Palomares del Duero.

27. Since 1864, D. Rafael Duany y Valiente was authorized to use his title of Pontifco de Conde de Duany; he was Ensign of the Royal Navy and Perpetual Regidor of the municipality of Santiago de Cuba. In 1876 the title was given to D. Rafael Duany y Ferrer.

28. I have wanted to close this list with the name of Emilio Bacardí y Moreau, notable patriot and industrialist from Santiago, thanks to whose vision and love the city was able to save great quantities of information that were published in his Cronicas de Santiago de Cuba, republished recently thanks also to the love and generosity of his daughter Amalia Bacardí Cape.

Marriages 1845 - 1856

This listing consists of extractions from Volume 8 of marriages covering the years 1845 to 1856. There are some entries for earlier years that were done out of sequence, as it appears in the original transcriptions written by Francisco Xavier de Santa Cruz and his associates, during the 1930s and 1940s.

The REVISTA of CGS, Volumes 1:3, 1:4, 2:1, 4:1, 4:3, 4:4 and 5:3 contain the previous volumes, One to Seven, of marriage entries from El Sagrario.

The information contained in the following list has the same format as previously used. To recap: The surname and given name are found first, followed by the sex of the individual, the date of the marriage, a column indicating whether the individual listed is the one being married (M) or is associated genealogically (G); this G follows names of parents or other spouses and witnesses. The reference numbers finish out the line. The numbers at the very end refer to the page and entry number of the original transcriptions. These are helpful in looking at all the individuals identified in a given entry and also may be used for further reference in corresponding with CGS to get a copy of the entry.
